RE: Meeting Report

Below is a monthly report corresponding to the agenda items for the November 15th meeting.

Item 3) The Arts Partnership Regranting
The Arts Partnership is requesting $112,000 from the Art and Culture Commission to administer the various duties they perform in the metro to support the arts. If there is an increase in funding from the City to the Art and Culture Commission, at which point, The Arts Partnership is requesting 75% of that new total.

The Arts Partnership received $112,000 in regranting dollars from the 2017 budget.

Recommendation: Approve The Arts Partnership’s request for $112,000 in regranting dollars for the 2018 year.

Item 4) Logo Update
At the October 18 Arts and Culture Commission meeting, the commission approved the proposed scope-of-work and allowed Dorsey Design to proceed with the logo. After further discussion of the logo provided in the October packet, Dorsey Design has provided staff with two alternative logos that they feel represents the commission. Stephen of Dorsey Design will present the logos to the commission.

Item 5) Arts Management Report
Please see attached report for information about the Randy Hayes artwork, owned by the City of Fargo.

Recommendation: Pursue restoration estimate and proceed with repair.

Item 6) Public Art Policy Draft
The staff has developed a draft public art policy modeled after best practices, the public art master plan, and institutional knowledge. This is an example of how our work will bridge between policy and operations, ultimately culminating in an operations manual.

In addition, staff have been coordinating with the Mayor’s office regarding the art program for the new city hall. In particular, to the exterior, we are bringing forward a draft approach for selecting artwork for the exterior of city hall. Please see attached RFP.

Recommendation: Review and provide comments to staff either at the meeting or over the course of the next month. Final policy will be brought forward in December.
Item 7) Public Art Master Plan Update
The week of October 15 staff and members of the commission presented the Public Art Master Plan. Staff received a lot of great feedback and comments. Staff also presented at the Park Board brown bag, the November Native American Commission meeting as well as at the Art and Business Breakfast hosted by the Plains Art Museum. Staff has been in contact with the Fargo Public School District about the plan. The School District will provide copies to their board members and notify us of any comments or questions they may have.

Public outreach will continue the month of November with more public campaigns. An information Brown Bag will be presented to the City Commission (date to be determined). We will wait to schedule the City Commission meeting agenda item until we’ve had a chance to connect with the City Commissioners for an overall briefing.

In January, based on conversation brought forward to staff, a suggestion of a ½ day retreat is suggested to dive in deeper with the public arts master plan and 2018 work plan as we brainstorm on operations and activities.

Item 8) 2018 Calendar
Attached is the proposed 2018 Arts and Culture Commission meeting dates. The meetings will continue to fall on the third Wednesday of each month at 5pm with the exception of November. Due to the Thanksgiving holiday the commission meeting will be held on November 14 at 5pm.

Dear Dr. Bertolini and the Art and Culture Commission:

Please accept my thanks for the recommendation by the Fargo Art and Culture Commission to continue the funding relationship the City of Fargo has with The Arts Partnership for an increase to $112,000 in 2017. As you know, that increase allowed The Arts Partnership to award a significant increase in City Arts Partnership grants to area nonprofits making art.

I am writing to request the same amount of money from the Art and Culture Commission to administrate the various duties we perform in the metro to support the arts ($112,000) unless there is an increase in funding from the City to the Art and Culture Commission, at which point, I am requesting 75% of that new total, which is in keeping with the last many years of funding The Arts Partnership has received from the Art and Culture Commission.

Because the 2017 City Arts Partnership grant applications were just turned in last week, we don’t yet have award numbers for 2017, so I am including the information from the 2016 grant cycle as evidence of the value of this investment in the community. I did want to apprise you of these few “facts” about the grant applications for this year:

- 34 City Arts Partnership grant applicants = total budgets $10.175 million
- The top seven organizations—our largest institutions representing 21% of those applicants—have budgets totaling $7.372 million (or 72% of the total)
- Five of those seven are in Fargo - with $4.423 million in budgets. That represents 60% of the top seven’s combined budget or 44% of the $10.175 million budget total
- 56%, or 19 of the 34 applicants, are Fargo-based organizations
- Total audiences for the 34 applicants are 461,618, with 50% coming from Fargo residences

Thank you, again, for your support.

Sincerely,

Dayna Del Val, executive director The Arts Partnership

Currently:

- All interested organizations must attend a mandatory grant pre-application meeting. We have found that this has dramatically improved the quality of the applications.
- The grant application process is run through the online grant system operated by the FM Area Foundation. The Arts Partnership pays an annual fee to use their system. This has also improved the grant writing and reading process.
Recently, we created three tiers of funding based on set criteria: General Operating Support, Program Support and Project Support.

Once the panel has made their recommendation to the BOD of The Arts Partnership and they have approved them, grantees are sent an electronic and hard copy letter telling them of their successful or unsuccessful application and the amount they have been awarded. Our Grants and Programs Coordinator also offers to provide feedback from the conversation for future grant writing opportunities.

Grantees must sign a grant agreement form as well as provide a final report each year. Failure to do that renders an organization ineligible to apply for funding the following year.

Going forward:

- In addition to the existing steps to applying for a City Arts Partnership grant, in 2017, The Arts Partnership will award 80% of the full grant amount in June. The other 20% will be sent after the final report is turned in. Any dollars not given out because of this will be carried over to the next City Arts Partnership grant round. We don’t anticipate this being the case, but we want to ensure that we are receiving final reports because we want the qualitative and quantitative information for our own fundraising purposes as well as ensuring that our grantees are being responsible stewards of tax-payer money.

- In our continued efforts to make this grant efficient and meaningful, we will switch our tiered system of funding to General Operating Support I, General Operating Support II and Project Support. This makes better sense due to the large budget gap between the eight largest arts organizations and the others, whose budgets are far below but whose work is still high caliber.

We know that the revisions and refinements we have made to the City Arts Partnership grants are making a marked difference for many of our arts organizations. Linda Boyd, Executive Director of the FM Symphony Orchestra, reflected on this year’s grant program:

As one of the major arts institutions receiving annual operating support grants from The Arts Partnership, the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony Orchestra greatly appreciates the restructured grant process that TAP initiated over the past year. The process began very thoughtfully with one-on-one conversations between leaders of major arts organizations and TAP grants consultant Tania Blanich. Information we provided resulted in a more focused grant application, a keener understanding of the characteristics and organizational needs of the major organizations in the community and, ultimately, three tiers of grant funding and maximum grant amounts. The deliberate and professional way that the grantmaking process was updated is one of a multitude of reasons that the work of The Arts Partnership is so valued by the entire arts community.

LOGO DESIGN PROPOSAL

City of Fargo Arts & Culture Commission

10/5/2017

Good Morning Brittany,

Thank you for the opportunity to submit a proposal for a new logo design for Fargo’s Art & Culture Commission. Very exciting! My fee for a design would be $1,500. This would include a logo designed as vector line art. The logo would be original, free from any copyrighted material. You would receive the vector file in .ai, .eps and .pdf formats in both Pantone Solid Spot Color and black and white versions. High resolution pixel based versions (.jpeg, .png) in both color and grayscale for web use will also be provided. Ownership transfer to you will be given after final payment is made.

I have included an initial design for your review. The icon is shown in bright colors depicts diverse individuals “huddled” together. Their shape creates an aperture which touches on the visual aspect of art. Font is Montserrat (Regular and Bold) in 70% gray.

Please feel free to contact me for questions or comments regarding this proposal. Thank you!

The artwork came to the City as a temporary loan in 2010 from the Microsoft Art Collection for an initial period of seven months (Nov. 1, 2010- June 1, 2011) and included a possible offer of extension to five years after the initial loan period. Microsoft was unable to obtain the required signatures for the extension paperwork in 2011 and after several years, choose to transfer ownership through a Deed of Gift which also included an appraisal. It has recently been discovered that while in storage, the artwork has sustained water damage and will be in need of restoration. As of November 2013, the artwork is appraised at $6,690.

- Currently tracking the notarized Deed of Gift and Appraisal.
- Developing processes and procedures to create consistency with how artwork within the collection is documented, tracked, and stored.
- Recommend restoration.

12. Additional public engagement
13. Additional conditions of approval, including the waiver of certain VARA Rights, lease or encroachment agreements, artist contracts, etc.

Project Selection Criteria

The Commission will review all public art proposals. The overall character of the work should align with the following considerations:

1. Aesthetic Quality: Objective property with subjective response, meaning aesthetics is based on personal taste and the emotional response one has from observing the object. Aesthetic quality is often determined by conducting an aesthetic evaluation of the object by observing the structural qualities: tone, shape, color, line, form, and texture.

2. Quality and Elements of Design: The artwork must complement, enhance or modify a public space towards becoming a focal and increasing its function. Attention should be paid to style, scale, material, form, durability and safety. Principles of Art and Design: balance, contrast, emphasis, movement, pattern, rhythm, unity/variety, and space. Additionally, the Artist reputation, experience, and craftsmanship should be taken into consideration.

3. External Factors: Will the Artwork encourage public participation, negatively impact social and political attitudes, and will the object function within its public space?

4. Fabrication: The Artist possesses the ability to meet the specific criteria established in the RFP. Failure to produce the approved artwork established in the RFP will lead to the artist forfeiting the monies allotted for the commissioned work.
Public Art Policy- Fargo Arts and Culture Commission

5. Cultural Geography: If relevant, does the Artwork take into account the cultural values, history, traditions, diversities, and identities of the region. Does the Artwork contribute to building a sense of place within the cultural landscape of the City of Fargo?

6. Public Art Master Plan - The work aligns with ideas and themes outlined within the Public Art Master Plan.

7. Content- The message the Artwork is conveying is clear and appropriate for public display and does not contain advertisement for any commercial, political, or other established organizations.

8. Public Liability: Works will not be selected or accepted that has the potential to create a public safety issue to the public or hold the City of Fargo liable.

Site Selection Criteria

The Commission will review all proposed performance and exhibition sites in order to determine the compatibility with the following considerations, as applicable:

1. Artwork must be installed in a safe and durable manner within a public space for the duration of its lifespan as outlined in the agreement.
2. The Artwork must also be compatible with existing public infrastructure, including drainage, grading, and maintenance.
3. The Artwork must enhance the quality of life and visual aesthetic for the public, neighborhood, and community.
4. If applicable, appropriate consideration will be given to the use and needs of adjacent property owners. Should the site be deemed too intrusive to surrounding property owners due to the Artworks excessive of light, sound, smell, or overpowers in scale or appearance, the site will be denied.
5. The selected site has been identified as a focal point of the community or neighborhood and will be visible and accessible to the public. If a selected site is only accessible for a duration of time, those hours will be posted. Compliance with applicable ADA requirements shall be required.
6. The selected site will have limited or no public art at the location.
7. The Public Art Master Plan will be the guiding document for public art selection. City Commission shall have final authority in determining the appropriateness of any proposed location of public artwork covered by this policy.

Artist Selection Methods

The City of Fargo shall seek opportunities to help develop a growing population of professional public artists in the Fargo area. The City will strive to award contracts for the public art projects amongst Fargo-based Artists only if the Artist is able to meet the qualifications for the Publics Arts Project and Artist Selection Criteria.

If it is found that there is a lack of qualified local Artists, the City of Fargo may award contracts to Artists within the state of North Dakota and Nationally. Factors such as the size of the project, the level of visibility, the availability of funding, and other conditions, all may influence the selection of artists.

1. Open Call for Artist is an open invitation to artists to participate in a public arts program. The invitation will outline the scope of work, project criteria, and budget.
Public Art Policy- Fargo Arts and Culture Commission

2. Limited Call for Artists will be utilized when projects requiring a specialized skill, working within a short time frame, or the parameters of private partnership require only a select number of individuals be invited to apply.

3. The Direct Selection of an Artist may take place when time and resources are limited, the Artist possesses the skill, knowledge, and experience needed for a specific project.

For both Open and Limited Calls, the Artist must submit a Request for Proposals (RFP) or Request for Qualifications (RFQ) in addition to their qualifications for consideration; Professional resume, images, drawings or other visual representations of past work, a written Artist's statement addressing the artwork, subject matter and how it pertains to the project (inspiration, community influence, previous experience creating public art), and references.

Artists who have completed past public art projects with the City of Fargo shall submit an inventory of past works.

   i. RFP: A Request for Proposals will require the artist to submit their qualifications and an initial proposal for a specific project.

   ii. RFQ: A Request for Qualifications will require the artist to submit only their qualifications to be considered by the selection panel. A detailed proposal may be developed at a later phase within the selection process, either prior to or after the final artist(s) has been selected.

Artist Selection Criteria

The artist selection process shall ensure that the interests of all concerned parties are represented, including the public, the art community and the City departments. All artists selected by either Open Call, Limited Call, or Direct Select will be reviewed based on the following criteria:

1. Quality of Completed Works- Artists will be selected based on the quality of completed works of art with the following considerations: Artistic merit, design originality, elements of design, fulfillment of intent, and inherent meaning.

2. Previous Experience- Artists will be able to provide evidence of their artistic skill and ability to complete projects within specified time frame. Past experience can be presented through a variety of documents, such as, exhibition or performance records, past commissions, public reviews, and recommendations or awards.

3. Preferred Qualifications- There may be instances where preference will be given to an Artist possessing a specific skillset or experience in a designated medium. In those cases, the selection committee may designate additional qualifications during the Artist Selection Process.

Documentation of Accessioned Artwork

For the purposes of this policy, a work of art acquired by the city will be Accessioned into the city’s Public Art Collection with the creation of a permanent record. The creation of a permanent record for an Artwork acknowledges the City of Fargo has custody and title of ownership.

Accessioned objects are held in permanence as long as:

- They support the Arts and Culture Commission mission statement
Public Art Policy- Fargo Arts and Culture Commission

- They retain physical integrity, authenticity, public importance, and relevance to the collection.
- They can be properly stored, preserved, and used.

The artwork will be assigned an accession number which will be applied to the backside and, if applicable, be visible on the Artwork exhibit label. The Commission will secure the documentation of all works accessioned into the Public Art Collection. This documentation shall be kept in the office of the Planning Department.

Documentation of all artwork accessioned shall include:

3. Medium
4. Date

It is also encouraged that an artist biography or artist statement be included alongside the artwork in order to provide education opportunities to the general public.

Deaccessioning of Artwork

Deaccessioning shall be approached with caution on a case-by-case basis. Artwork for Deaccessioning is determined and presented with a full justification to the Committee by an authorized member of the City Staff. The justification must contain the criteria for Deaccessioning and the method of disposal. Prior to the Committee meeting it must be determined that there are no legal restrictions or stipulations regarding the deaccessioning and/or disposal of the Artwork. The Arts and Culture Commission, in coordination with the City Attorney, will review all agreements between the artist and grantor of the artwork and the City to determine any possible prohibitions prior to deaccessioning the art work.

Criteria for Deaccession:

- Irrelevance to the Permanent Collection
- Duplication
- Inferior Quality or Poor Condition- items found to be fragile or those that are potential targets for vandalism and may not be appropriate for display in public spaces.
Public Art Policy- Fargo Arts and Culture Commission

- Undesirable Public Response that undermines the Mission, Vision, and Goals of the Commission
- Public Safety Concerns
- Inability for the City of Fargo to meet a standard of care or storage
- Issues with authenticity, attribution, or provenance
- Ethical, Political and Legal Concerns
- Financial burden associated with maintenance and preservation

Prior to Deaccessioning, the Artwork must be properly documented, including the justification presented to the Committee and notification to Accounting for insurance purposes. Reasonable effort should be made to the original donors’ immediate family of the City’s plan to deaccession artwork. If the immediate family has no interest in reacquiring the artwork, the process for disposal may proceed.

Disposal Methods:
- Donation to or exchange with another done
- Sale by public auction
- Intentional Destruction- inauthentic, reproduction, of no monetary value, physical integrity and is beyond the point of reasonable preservation.
- Donate back to donor/ immediate family

Installation and Maintenance

As outlined within the Site Selection Approval Criteria, all projects approved by the city must outline the parties responsible for installation and maintenance. When selecting a work of art to purchase or determining if a donation may be accepted, the Commission and City will take into consideration any security issues, the cost of installation, and the cost of maintaining the work over its lifetime. This includes start-up and ongoing costs for cleaning, mounting, framing, or any item required for proper display. Consideration should be given to structural and surface integrity, permanence and protection of the artwork against theft, vandalism, weathering, and excessive maintenance and repair costs.

When necessary, a preservation plan which outlines the maintenance procedures and projected funds for required maintenance will be established. This plan will include the projected staff time required for maintenance, which will include time required for regular cleaning, as well as staff time required to solicit and secure contracts with specialists and conservators.

All works of art not on public display will be kept in storage located at ____________________________ with access being given to authorized City Staff within the ___________________________ Department associated with the Arts and Culture Commission.

Copyright and Transfer of Ownership

Copyright is a form of intellectual property that provides legal protection to the owner of copyrights and specific work. If applicable, it is the responsibility of the City of Fargo to properly manage these forms of intellectual property and understand the separation of ownership rights from the fair use of copyrighted images within collections and exhibitions.
Public Art Policy- Fargo Arts and Culture Commission

Nicole + Arts & Culture Commission,

Thank you so much for your support of the Canoe Parade. We are well on our way to having an annual river arts event with our inaugural parade success. We look forward to more partnerships with the City of Fargo as the parade grows. We hope to see more of the master plan come to life! THANK YOU!

Park Type: Water Stories
Reconnecting people to water or rethinking how water is managed in the community as a cultural asset.

Key lessons to look for:
1. Artists can be environmental leaders and help steer important conversations that might normally be reserved for scientists or engineers.
2. Key project leaders understood the time and constraints, particularly of each organization and partner, to be flexible with timing and progress.
3. Partner development happened organically over several years, as opposed to forcing relationships, giving each member a more fully vested sense of involvement.
Geographic context
Between April and October in the late 19th century, trains loaded with goods from Saint Paul, Minnesota would offload onto steamboats on the Red River, which ran through Fargo, North Dakota. This trade made the city an important entrepôt and gateway to western commerce. Today, Fargo, a city of more than 120,000 and the largest in the state, continues to thrive in many ways, with a low unemployment rate, low crime and quality housing stock.

The city resides in the Red River Valley, formed by the withdrawal of the glacial Lake Agassiz, which has some of the most fertile and productive farmland in the country. As the river flows north, melting snowpack and ice creates ice dams, causing water to breach the banks. Because Fargo’s landscape is mostly flat, overland flooding has become a significant concern for the city and the region. Serious floods in the 1990s elevated the awareness of this threat and spurred substantial investment in water management infrastructure, including “concrete channels, drainage pipes, pumps, and containment basins, or ‘ponds.’” Subsequent severe weather in the 2000s, while damaging, was strikingly less impactful than it could have been before these investments.

What were the goals?
This stormwater infrastructure, while effective, had unintended consequences for the community. Many of the pipes and ditches separated neighborhoods and created discontinuity between places. The oldest, and in many occasions largest basins are in low to moderate-income neighborhoods, including areas where Fargo’s Native American and New American population lives (refugees and immigrants from twenty different nations). These important assets worked very well in one way, but not in others, serving to devalue some of the landscape in and around these communities. Retention basins, in their normative state, are not the most attractive features of cities.

Leaders in city government and the community began to recognize that this infrastructure had deleterious effects on the quality of many residents’ lives. It became apparent that any solution to make these spaces more welcoming and more useful would have to rely on creativity and ingenuity and not necessarily more engineering.

In 2009, the Red River flooded again, further creating the awareness for solutions to a town where water affects more and more of everyday life.

Arts-based strategy
The strategies and solutions used to reach these goals were unique in their grassroots and artist-led perspective. This was not an expert-driven project. It attempted, in at times radical ways, to give voice to as many people as possible.

The origin story of the Fargo Project most frequently starts with visits from the environmental artist Jackie Brooker, who had an interest in both community-based art and stormwater management. Brooker had connected with a Fargo resident and advocate in New York, where they both shared excitement about the opportunities in North Dakota. After a series of exploratory conversations among city officials, Fargo, through planning administrator Nicole Crutchfield, decided to bring Brooker to the town for a visit with local leaders and stakeholders, including the Plains Art Museum, North Dakota State University, and the Spirit Room (a local community center). Fargo had a history of bringing outside experts to the city and was familiar with this kind of outreach. Brooker and her Fargo-based partners quickly found parallel interests and perspectives. While the environmental challenges of the area were important, conversations quickly tracked to questions about community, about outsiders versus belonging, and about celebrating together as a community. These questions became important as they toured water management sites.

After the visit, Brooker talked about a potential vision for a project in a stormwater basin: “A central gathering place ... will create a sense of place and convey the specific identity and individuality of the Red River and Fargo (looking both back and forward in time), that will facilitate encounters with people and the landscape, and that will also function ecologically to restore habitat and help keep urban stormwater pollution out of the river.”

The team discussed an intervention at one of the retention basin sites as a first step. Based on her initial and future visits, they narrowed it down to five potential sites and identified an ideal site based on the criteria of access, visibility, and disturbance risks, as well as the preference for a neighborhood that did not already have a place to gather. The site chosen was Rabanus Park, which was dominated by a large retention basin. The neighborhood around the park included many apartment complexes and big-box retail establishments.

What could be done to make this large site with no trees and very little, an active community space that reflected the diversity of the community?

The artist could meet with local engineers and bureaucrats on their terms. After some initial hesitation about how to speak with an artist as part of an engineering process, members of the group could become comfortable with each other and their goals. Brooker made sure to respect and understand the engineering challenges and needs, and didn’t start from a place of questioning. Radically open listening helped not only to build understanding, but involved setting up tables outside, canvassing, and other very grassroots coalition-building methods.

With the engagement of city engineers, neighbors, and local organizations showing strong signs of success, the group planned for a touchstone event, “Imagining Together WeDesign,” a daylong workshop to imagine the renovation of the retention basin in Rabanus Park into a World Garden Commons. The day included more than 200 people from

As part of the planning for the WeDesign process, the team instituted a “train the trainer” approach to the arts by putting out a call for local artists to be involved in the park process to be trained by Brooker, whose expertise could continue to influence the site and do so through local perspectives. These artists could embody their own agendas and practices and gain deeper understandings of ecological processes and working with diverse stakeholders.

The WeDesign event showcased a variety of backgrounds and plenty of cultural activities, such as a Native American drum circle and intertribal dance, accompanied by fry bread tacos. The train the trainer approach ensured that these activities were locally-based and that they were sustainable over a long period of time.

The event helped to produce a vision to create a public space reflective of the world’s rich cultural histories in Fargo and that could become a true asset to the community. The WeDesign event marked the beginning of a more sustained design and implementation effort. The group found ways to continually engage the community after the charrette and to build the project’s momentum.

The arts-based strategy has been apparent in two ways: first, as an artist-led process to think differently about urban spaces and to engage diverse communities and second, by using the arts as a way to make infrastructure more human and accessible.

What happened?
The Fargo Project is an ongoing process, and the final vision for the project will unfold over the next several years. Nonetheless, there was an important conceptual shift made by including artists in what the “project” actually was. Instead of seeing a finished public space as the only important outcome, the project team realized that the process of engagement, design, and stewardship was a project unto itself, with its own value and benefits.

The World Garden Commons was the first realization of an eventful, more comprehensive master plan. It included new public spaces, artist installations, gardens, and public pathways. It helped to seed ideas about how the basin could be used by the community.

A great example of these cultural activities include the sculptor Dwight Mickelson’s Listening Garden, a sculpture that includes two listening spaces, one in the small alcove where people can listen to sounds of the meadow - frogs, crickets and birds - and another larger space that can host concerts, theater, and other events.

This project also highlighted the importance for collaborative project management within the city. For example, the city’s maintenance staff instituted a new mowing policy for the site, to understand the plant diversity on the site. The city realized that this practice had value and saved money, and has since expanded its use. The city restructured some of its internal management to ensure that projects such as this would have appropriate capacity and oversight. The excitement and potential of the World Garden Commons led them to institute new exploratory processes within everyday practices and projects that could take advantage of these opportunities.
