Details of Complaint: I was walking out of my girlfriend's apartment when I was stopped by two officers. The officers said "sir where are you coming from" I answered leaving my girlfriend's house. They then said "were going to need to search your bag". I responded with No I'm sorry unless you have a warrant you can't do that. The officers then pulled my bag off my back and ~~another~~ one officer patted me down while the other search my bag as he put my stuff on the ground. He continued to tell me to keep my arms up. I started to panic so my battery start to go off (for my epilepsy) and my voice changes when this happens. Well the officers told me to stop that and turn it off. Then said "who's keys are these". I told them they were my girlfriend's. Then proceed to try and take them because they weren't mine. I said no those the only ones she has. They then gave me my stuff back. I ask why did you stop me and they replied "You looked suspicious only things where strong bags"
(Use additional sheets if necessary)
